

SCOTT ANDERSON was one of the numerous college reps joining us in October for our Portfolio Day. He has kindly volunteered to share the following information regarding Portfolio Development/Considerations from the insights of a college rep's perspective. Please review this information , share it with colleagues and students as we/they prepare for their personal journey sharing their art. This is extremely useful information so let's put it to good use.

Dear Art Faculty,

With kind assistance from Marie Colby ad Chris Brisee, I am pleased to direct you to the most recent art web page on the CCCC web site. (link above). I designed this page to assist those students in our art & design classes who are interested in putting a portfolio together for application to an art school. Please review the page and should you have any additional suggestions please e-mail me directly.

I encourage you all to continue to identify students in your classes that are serious about art & design as a career choice and if you do not have the time to assist them in this regard, I ask that you encourage them to stop by my office for a chat about their academic goals, and please make students aware of this web page.

I would also encourage any instructor who does not have a presence on the art faculty page to provide me with a CD that includes the following:

A one paragraph bio about what you enjoy about teaching.

Five images of your work and five images of your students work.

A jpeg image of you.

Any other links to your own web site etc that you feel would be of interest to students.

Thank you.
